HISTORIANS HEAR TALK BY DR. A. R. WENTZ

"We will never have a workable world democracy until we develop a greater social intelligence than we have now—and the best way to develop a better social intelligence is by the study of local history," Dr. A. R. Wentz, president of the local Lutheran Theological seminary told the Adams county Historical society at its first fall meeting Tuesday evening at the court house.

Speaking on "Why We Study History," Doctor Wentz asserted that in addition to the general cultural value of the study of history, it also develops a "spirit of inquiry and an attitude of research" which is "a sign of growth." History develops loyalty by making the historian "acquainted with the great ones of the past." History is part of the "past, present and future" with the "light of the experience of the past shining over the shoulder of the historian to light the way into the future," Doctor Wentz declared.

Receive Documents

Greetings were brought the society by Burgess Fred Pfeffer and County Superintendent of Schools J. Floyd Slaybaugh. A number of historical documents were presented before the society formally opened its new quarters in the basement of the court house. The session began in the court rooms before adjourning to the new quarters for the formal opening.

Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, president of the society, reported on the history of the establishment of the new quarters, which include a meeting room and vault. Plans for the establishment began two years ago. The thanks of the association to the county commissioners and former commissioners' clerk C. Arthur Brame for their work in establishing the rooms was expressed.

Burgess Pfeffer extended "greetings from the official family of Gettysburg" and told the historians that they could perform their greatest "service to the community by studies into the history of the town to keep the shroud of oblivion away from the historical moments that have made Gettysburg what it is."

Masonic Gift

The burgess presented several documents turned over to officials of the town 80 years ago by a southern Masonic lodge which gave details of an event occurring during the first day of the battle here in which a Pottsville man, who was a Mason, fell wounded and, after giving the Masonic distress sign was assisted by a Confederate officer, who was a fellow Mason.

County Superintendent Slaybaugh extended greetings from the 4,800 students in the county's schools and presented a short history of the county's school system since the establishment of the county superintendency in 1854. County superintendents serving the longest period (Please Turn to Page 8)

LAUDS PAPERS FOR BOND AID

Harrisburg, Oct. 6 (AP)—Pennsylvania newspapers were praised by Don U. Bridge, of the U. S. Treasury War Savings staff, for their help in promoting War Bond sales. Bridge said 9,743 papers published 35,000 full pages of advertising during last April's second War Loan drive.

"Never before in history had so much advertising been declared to sell anything," Bridge declared. "Never before was so much of anything sold. Accurate figures for the Third War Loan drive are not yet available but lineage exceeded the April figures by a substantial margin."

The speaker said, "the unprecedented cooperation of newspapers and their advertisers is particularly noteworthy in view of the newsprint shortage."

Advertising Necessary

"No advertising campaign was ever more vital to the nation," he added. "No advertising has demonstrated to a greater degree the more exalted functions of advertising as a necessary social and economic force serving the public welfare."

Bridge urged continued sales campaigns and pointed out that $1,000,000,000 in bonds must be sold each month. To help reach that goal, he said, newspapers should:

Sell advertising to local sponsors, stress initiative rather than rely on help from Washington, place emphasis on sale of consistent insertions and retain control of advertising rates.

Blue Ridge Plans Air Service Here

Local air transportation came a step closer for Gettysburg today with the announcement that Blue Ridge Bus lines have filed an application with the Civil Aeronautics Board for the right to operate regular air service to and from this city. Longtime operator of a large inter-city bus system covering much of the territory between the Great Lakes and Chesapeake Bay and serving this community, Blue Ridge has applied for air line franchises on routes generally duplicating its present bus service.

The kind of aircraft to be used in this service, if and when permission to operate is granted, has not been definitely determined. The application requests the right to employ "helicopter or other types of aircraft adapted for the service which the applicant desires to render." Blue Ridge officials are currently investigating the suitability of existing and proposed aircraft for this purpose.

LEAGUE OPENS FALL PROGRAM; HEAR SPEAKER

The Woman's League of Gettysburg college launched its fall and winter program Tuesday afternoon in the social rooms of Christ Lutheran church. Mrs. Thomas L. Cline, president, presided.

The meeting opened with the singing of the National Anthem following which Mrs. Dwight F. Putman conducted a short devotional period reading Moffatt's translation of the 65th Psalm.

Dr. Harry F. Baughman, of the Lutheran Theological seminary, spoke on "Christopher Columbus and the Religious Aspects of His Discovery." He traced the course of his life from the early days when he petitioned Queen Isabella and King Ferdinand for help in financing the trip to the western hemisphere to his later life when he was in chains.

He said that had the Spanish rulers who had refused Columbus aid not sent after him when he was enroute for help from other nations, the entire history of the world might have been changed.

In answer to the criticism that Columbus is said to have used his religion as a cloak for his ambitions, Dr. Baughman stated that he felt that "the blind spot in his religion was the blind spot of most Christians of that day." He commended Columbus first for the fact that he "followed the soul's invincible surmise" and second, for his spirit of adventure.

Talks on Patriotism

Mrs. Henry W. A. Hanson, chairman of the program committee, gave a brief talk on patriotism. The group joined in singing "God Bless America" and "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean," led by Mrs. Henry M. Scharf with Mrs. A. Z. Rodgers playing the accompaniment.

William Black, a student at the college, sang two selections accompanied by Ross Forney. Mrs. Cline introduced several women, newly arrived in Gettysburg, who were guests at the meeting after which the group joined in singing the college Alma Mater.

County Doctors See Cancer Film

Five reels of motion pictures produced by the American Society for the Control of Cancer showing living cell reactions in various culture media and reaction to radiation were shown at the October meeting of the Adams county Medical society Tuesday evening in the board room of the Warner hospital.

Dr. D. B. Coover, Littlestown, presided. Capt. Elbert T. Kweeder, medical officer of the 55th College Training Detachment at Gettysburg college, was a special guest. Twelve members attended.

The society received a letter from Congressman Chester Gross to the effect that he is against proposed socialized medicine legislation. Last month the society sent Gross a resolution opposing socialized medicine.

The society went on record as being fully in support of the salvage drive of which Dr. Eugene Elgin, East Berlin, is county chairman.

The Gettysburg WCTU will meet Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock with Mrs. Emory Zepp, East Middle street.

A.L. 4-COUNTY COUNCIL WILL CONVENE HERE

The officers will also act as delegates.

Luncheon to Follow

Mrs. John Woodcock, St. Thomas, council president, will preside.

At 12:30 o'clock the Maude Miller Bible class of the church will serve a luncheon.

On Friday Mrs. Hartzell and Mrs. Eardorff will attend the presidents' secretaries' conference at the Forum in the Educational building at Harrisburg. Mrs. Hartzell has received notification from Mrs. H. W. Piper, department president, of her appointment as sub-chairman of the press and radio committee of the Auxiliary for the year of 1943-44.

Here And There News Collected At Random

Gettysburg should lose no time in organizing a thoroughly representative post-war planning committee.

The committee should be the strongest possible and it should select from within or without its ranks, but definitely from the community, an executive director who can visualize future objectives and formulate a sound and orderly process of attaining them.

The committee should be an entity in its own right, so representative as to be inclusive of all local interests but dominated by none of them. It should devise and direct an overall program that will move the community forward along its entire front.

The address of Ralph W. Cummings, of the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce, before the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce a few days ago was of timely importance. Those who heard him readily recognized what he said to be sound advice.

He did not venture to predict the future or to say exactly what our problems will be.

He did, however, paint realistically the problem attending national conversion from war to peace time economy. It is indisputable that all communities will have their share of those problems although no one can foretell exactly what they will be.

This much, however, is known:

1. More than 3,000 Adams county men and women will return from the services and from outside war industries and jobs will have to be found for them.

2. There will be virtually new beginnings in the travel, manufacturing, agricultural and education.

PLEADS GUILTY

William Baggett, 1604 Washington street, has pleaded guilty to a serious charge laid before Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore, it was learned today. The charge was laid by Corporal Earl Moore, of the local state police.

SECOND GAME WORLD SERIES

Cardinals 4, New York 1, end of sixth inning.

Inspectors Okay Borough Schools

Three Gettysburg schools were found in "good" condition in regard to fire protection this morning when they were visited by Charles I. Kepner, inspector of the Department of Labor and Industry, and members of the local fire department.

Inspection was made of the Meade, High street and local high schools, this morning and fire drills were held in all of the schools. The Gettysburg Throwing company plant was also inspected during the morning. The parochial school and a number of other places in the town were being visited this afternoon by the fire inspector.

FUND FOR STATE GUARD COLORS REACHES $891

Contributions by countians to the fund being raised for the county company of the Pennsylvania State Guard Reserve total $891.32, Judge W. C. Sheely, treasurer of the drive, and Chairman James B. Aumen have announced.

The state guard unit will receive a stand of colors including the American and State flags at formal exercises in center square at 8 p. m. Thursday, October 14. The flags, which are being purchased from the fund have arrived, it was announced. The money remaining after the purchase of the flags will be presented to the company to purchase equipment.

13 Communities Give

The local unit, comprised of volunteers from throughout the county, is the largest in the state. No provisions are made by the state to purchase flags or other equipment for the reserve units.

The $891.32 contribution by the countians was divided among Abbotstown, $14; Arendtsville, $64; Bendersville, $15; Biglerville, $45; Bonneauville, $5; Cashtown, $10; Centennial, $6; Fairfield, $10; East Berlin, $90.55; Littlestown, $75; New Oxford, $20; York Springs, $26.50 and Gettysburg $468.77.

The donations were made by individuals, companies, and fraternal, patriotic and civic organizations, it was stated. A list of the donors will be published Thursday.

COUNTY IOOF GROUP MEETS

Following the regular session of Gettys lodge, No. 124, I. O. O. F., held Tuesday evening in the lodge rooms on Chambersburg street, the October meeting of the Past Grands' association of Adams county was held.

The meeting was called to order by President Murray E. Wentz, and opened with one verse of "America," with Miss Mary Claire Myers serving as pianist. The invocation was by T. J. Winebrenner, chaplain of the local lodge, followed by the address of welcome by J. Frank Dougherty, and the response by C. D. Bream, of Bendersville.

Entertainment features consisted of several flute solos by Miss Lena (Please Turn to Page 8)

Government Takes Over Large Part Of County Apple Yield

Seeking to assure adequate supplies of apple products for canning, the War Food Administration today took over the county's supply of apples that do not meet the minimum requirements for U. S. No. 1's or higher grades by announcing that "lower grade apples produced in Adams county can be sold only to authorized processors."

Affected by the order are Adams, Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton and York counties, Carl A. Hille, area supervisor of the Food Distribution Administration, Harrisburg, said today.

The regulation states that "No person shall sell or deliver restricted apples except to an authorized processor; and no person other than an authorized processor shall purchase, accept delivery of, or use restricted apples."

The order however makes some exceptions. An apple grower "may, in each calendar year, sell or deliver

25 SOLDIERS TO HELP IN APPLE HARVEST HERE

Twenty-five soldiers from Indian-town Gap today were scheduled to join the "army" of men and women assisting in the handling of the county's crop of apples.

The 25 men will work at the C. H. Musselman plant at Gardners, assisting with the removal of the apples from trucks to the apple processing plant.

Officials of the plant said today they believed the addition of the soldiers to the regular staff would relieve the congestion that has been caused by the arrival of more apples than the limited staff previously at the plant could handle, and give "almost perfect" service to growers delivering the apples.

The men will be stationed at the Hotel Gettysburg, it was said, during the period they will be working here. It was not known this morning how long the soldiers will be in the county.

Real Shortage of Labor

While the arrival of the soldiers helped alleviate the situation somewhat from the canner's viewpoint, other canners and growers have been running on short labor rations since the beginning of the season. Fruit growers with good crops are reported as having had little difficulty in obtaining pickers while those with scattered crops to harvest are said to be having considerable trouble in securing help.

Larger orchards which can afford to run buses to communities in the county and nearby for help are able to secure enough labor, it was reported, while smaller fruit growers have been experiencing much more difficulty in obtaining assistance.

REUBEN NARY FOUND DEAD

Reuben H. Nary, 61, died at his home in Arendtsville during the night. He retired at 10 o'clock Tuesday night and was found dead this morning. He had been ill for about six weeks, suffering from a heart ailment.

A son of Mrs. Elizabeth Nary, Biglerville, and the late David Nary, he was born in Adams county and was a laborer most of his life.

Surviving besides his mother are his wife, who was Caroline Waller, a daughter, Mrs. Ray Tholey, Philadelphia and a brother, Orin Nary, Biglerville. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Miss Emma Miller Rites This Morning

Funeral services for Miss Emma Miller, 69, formerly of Fountaindale, were held this morning at 10 o'clock from the Allison funeral home, Fairfield, conducted by the Rev. Edwin Werner. Interment in St. Jacob's Reformed cemetery, Fountaindale.

The pallbearers were Harry and Francis Harbaugh, Elmer Tressler and Charles Martin.

Motorists Warned Of Ration Deadline

War Price and Rationing boards in Adams county today warned motorists to file promptly their applications for renewals of their basic "A" gasoline rations. All applications are to be on file by October 15, a board statement said.

Inadvertently a space for recording speedometer readings has been omitted on some application forms, and ration board members said that applicants must record their speedometer readings on parts A and B of Form R570.

Motorists were asked to submit the applications by mail.

BOND CAMPAIGN IS $77,757.50 OVER THE TOP

Additional sale of war bonds, recorded before the closing time of midnight last Saturday but unreported Monday, brings Adams county's total in the Third War Bond campaign to $221,857.50.

The oversubscription is $77,757.50. Commenting on the "over the top" accomplishment of Adams county, Edmund W. Thomas, chairman of the county War Finance committee, made the following statement:

"There probably are no words to express the satisfaction our fighting men must find in the reports now coming from the home-front on the Third War Loan Drive. A national quota of $15,000,000,000, oversubscribed and additional purchases still coming in!

"A quota of $2,134,100 for Adams county, oversubscribed and reports on additional purchases still coming in!

"That quota meant approximately $50 for every man, woman and child in Adams county. That report will fill all the boys from Adams county in the armed forces with fresh hope and a renewed determination to smash the Axis.

Service to Fighters

"Throughout all these war bond drives, I have visualized our boys in their training bases in this country, on the various battlefronts of the globe, in the air, on the seas, in prison camps surrounded with high fences and guards, in hospitals, and I can only faintly realize what this outpouring of money from the people of Adams county to back these boys and what they are doing must mean to them, particularly those who are far from home. They know what the purchase of war bonds means.

"To the good people of Adams county go the hearty and sincere thanks not only of all the people engaged in selling war loan bonds, but of these men in service. The results achieved here are gratifying and reflect the splendid cooperation of everyone. A heavy burden in distributing these securities to the public fell on the shoulders of the banks of Adams county, and they did a magnificent job. The purchase of bonds in substantial amounts by corporations, institutions and other business interests was particularly encouraging. The large number of buyers of the 'E' bonds showed that the rank and file of our people believe a share in America is still the best investment in the world.

Gratitude of Boys

"To those untiring workers in this campaign who tossed aside all thought of personal matters, conveniences and comforts—to those who put the interests of this Third War Bond Drive ahead of everything else until it became evident the county would reach its quota—there are no words to convey the gratitude of those whose responsibility it was to see to it that Adams county went 'over the top.' May they find recompense in the satisfaction that comes of a job well done and in the gratitude of our boys in the service."

RECOMMENDS DECREE

A recommendation that the divorce be granted was contained in the report of the master, William Meals, Esq., in the divorce action of Carrie E. (Scott) Showers, 50 York street, against Melvin H. Showers, East High street. The report was filed Tuesday with the county prothonotary. Cruel and barbarous treatment is charged.

ARREST TWO

John Carson, Harrisburg, was sentenced to ten days in the county jail in default of a $3 fine and Frank Lida, Gettysburg R. 2, was fined $10 on charges of being drunk and disorderly brought before Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore by Borough Officer Lloyd E. Wisler.

Flying 'Forts Blast Bologna In Heavy Raid

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Allied Fifth Army has forced a crossing on the Volturno river, the Germans' strategic first line of defense on the road to Rome, it was announced today, and captured the towns of Aversa and Maddaloni north of Naples.

One unit crossed the Volturno, which runs 20 miles above Naples, at an unspecified point. The river, flowing into the coastal plain on the west side of Italy, had been expected to be the scene of a delaying action by the Nazis.

Nazis Rush Up Reinforcements

Reserves of Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's troops were thrown into action because of stubborn German resistance.

On the Adriatic side, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army engaged the Germans in heavy fighting along the Biferno river line near Termoli as the enemy attempted a strong delaying action there.

The Germans have thrown four to five divisions, up to 60,000 or 75,000 troops, into the Italian battleline.

Coursing far ahead of land troops, four waves of Flying Fortresses rained hundreds of tons of bombs on Bologna, rail center on the Brenner Pass line 180 miles below the German border, in "one of the most accurate and successful attacks" ever made by the Northwest African Air Force. Other planes hammered Nazi communications elsewhere in a wide area.

The Volturno river crossing probably was made inland in the mountain areas where the river is a tortuous stream.

BULLETINS

London, Oct. 6 (AP)—Reports of growing activity of Russian mobile columns on both ends of the long, rain-soaked eastern front suggested the possibility today that Red Army Forces were preparing a new drive in force to turn the flanks of the Germans in one or both of these widely separated sectors.

Madrid, Oct. 6 (AP)—Forces of Vichy police and German troops were thrown back yesterday by French guerrillas after a pitched battle in the Plantaurel mountains—foothills of the Pyrenees in the Arlege department south of Pamiers, it was learned today.

New Delhi, Oct. 6 (AP)—American and RAF bombers and fighters in offensive sweeps over Japanese-occupied Burma yesterday attacked rail and river communications, troop barracks and military installations, it was announced today. One RAF plane failed to return.

London, Oct. 6 (AP)—Allied fighters and fighter-bombers kept the aerial assault on German Europe going yesterday with attacks on targets in France and the Low Countries, some Typhons penetrating the Paris (Please Turn to Page 8)

INSTITUTE SET FOR OCT. 28-29

The 87th annual Adams County Teachers' Institute will be held October 28 and 29, it was announced today by County Superintendent J. Floyd Slaybaugh.

Most of the 230 public school teachers in the county are expected to attend the affair which will be held in the Majestic theatre.

Always one of the important educational events in the county, the institute this year will be of unusual importance, Mr. Slaybaugh said. A number of prominent speakers in the educational field are being secured for the event. Talks on present day world affairs and post-war possibilities will be presented by experts as will reports on recent changes in educational programs and activities.

HANOVER STORE CLOSES

The E. E. Hamm Furniture store which has engaged in the retail furniture business in Hanover for the last 28 years, closed its doors Tuesday. The complete stock of furniture has been sold to the William E. Miller Furniture company in Washington, D. C. Elwood E. Hamm, manager, said he will maintain an office at 408 Baltimore street, Hanover.

Aversa, seized in the steady Allied thrust northward in the face of heavy road demolitions, is an important rail junction 8 miles north of Naples, and was much-bombed by the Allies. Maddaloni is 14 miles northeast of Naples.

Artillery Duels

The Germans are using tanks in their battle with the Eighth Army in the Biferno river area, and lively artillery duels took place yesterday along the river, which British units have crossed in some places.

Bologna, one of the strategic links in the Nazi rail supply system, is a heavily-defended area, and the Fortresses met strong opposition.

Bombs ripped into freight yards, locomotive sheds, workshops, buildings, warehouses, oil tanks and a sugar factory in Bologna, focal point of heavy rail traffic, setting huge fires. The Fortresses sent down eight of 30 to 35 opposing enemy planes.

Slavs Cut Railway

(The Yugoslavs reported their liberation army had cut the railroad from Austria to Trieste, one of three main links feeding German troops and equipment into Italy.)

The Eighth Army pushing west of Termoli, seized in a surprise landing Sunday, and on the general line of the Biferno river southwest of the port encountered enemy forces.

"Heavy fighting is reported," the war bulletin said.

German resistance also stiffened in the mountainous frontal sector of the 100-mile zigzag front line across Italy—which now runs from the area on the west coast a little north of Naples through Aversa, Benevento and Montecarlo to the Adriatic at the mouth of the Biferno.

Blast Convoy

Allied fighter-bombers in forays yesterday destroyed half of an enemy convoy of 150 motor vehicles, and shot down two Junkers-52 transports north of Naples.

The communiqué said the Fifth Army was encountering an "increase in demolitions, craters and mines on the route along which they are advancing."

Medium bombers attacked highways and bridges at Formia, Isernia and Mignano.

British Eighth Army forces landed behind the German lines at Termoli Sunday and were said to be pushing toward the west where Allied headquarters said they were "in contact with the enemy forces."

The Fifth Army, meanwhile, rapidly brought up reserves, the communiqué said, and rushed the repair of bridges blown up in the path of their advance by the retreating Germans.

PLAN RECEPTION

Gettysburg Camp No. 112 and Auxiliary No. 27 of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War will hold a reception Saturday, October 16, at 8 p. m. in the post room on East Middle street in honor of State Department Commander Jesse E. Snyder, of the Sons of Veterans and Mrs. Ella Ruggles, department president of the Auxiliary, it was announced today.

NAZIS IN ROME POSE TOUGHEST TACTICAL MOVE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Should the Germans decide to hang on to Rome, despite the certainty of ultimate encirclement by the Allies, it will pose one of the war's toughest tactical problems for the Anglo-American Armies which are continuing their steady advance up the Italian peninsula.

Hitler, the anti-Christ who actually set himself up as a messiah and has for years been making bitter assaults on all Christian churches, is in effect holding the Pope as a hostage to shield the Nazi troops in the Eternal City. As added protection, the Hitlerites are surrounded by hundreds of thousands of civilians, and are encamped in the midst of shrines of Christendom and monuments which are among the priceless relics of history.

The Allies have sworn to free Rome, the Vatican and the Pope. President Roosevelt the other day attributed something of the aspects of a holy war to this operation, saying there were certain elements of a crusade in driving out the Germans. Because of all this, and because the capital city is the center of Italy's chief railways, its capture is one of the main objectives of our campaign.

Obviously, however, the last thing the Allies want is to have to take Rome by force. That would mean the deaths of many civilians and the destruction of some of the world's most cherished heirlooms. Yet if the master gangster should order several divisions of his troops to make a stand there, the Anglo-American Armies would be compelled either to storm the city or accept the alternative of leaving the Nazis in temporary possession. Any idea of starving this metropolis into submission seems outside the pale.

Might By-Pass Rome

There is no doubt that the Americans and British can surround Rome, despite increasing enemy resistance. Completion of the conquest of the island of Corsica, just off the western coast of Italy, will facilitate the landing of an amphibious force above the capital to cooperate with Generals Clark and Montgomery who are advancing from the south.

Still, Hitler might consider it well worth while to sacrifice his force of occupation in order to keep the Allies out of Rome. From his standpoint there are two arguments in favor of this gamble. One is that possession of the heart of the Italian railways would handicap the Allied advance up the peninsula. The other has to do with the moral effect, which would be calculated to impress the might of Germany on the small Axis satellites and any wavering Italian Fascists. Should this situation materialize, it might be that the Allies would leave Rome alone for the moment and advance against the main Nazi forces in the north. It would be a hard decision to make. Such tactics probably would require more troops than they now have in Italy, because they would have to protect their left flank against the German divisions which were behind them in the capital.

"The Old Game"

The war hasn't produced any similar situation. We have had so-called suicide stands in large cities, of course, but never before have there been such religious and historical aspects to complicate the situation.

We mustn't assume either that the Germans will decide to hold in face of certain encirclement, or, if they do, that the Allied command will decide not to use force to oust them. It's a fair assumption, however, that if the Nazis try this trick the Allies will consider the practicability of letting Rome alone for a bit.

Should the Germans be left in possession until their army in the north has been defeated, they then presumably will be able to surrender with no danger to themselves. It would be the old game of doing as much damage as possible from safe cover and then yelling "Kamerad" when things get hot.

Soldiers Buy
$650 In Bonds
Then Burn 'Em

One thousand trainees at Fort McClellan, Ala., under the command of Col. Lester L. Lampert, former Professor of Military Science and Tactics at Gettysburg, participated in the Third War Bond drive in an unusual way.

The following article, reprinted from the current issue of "The McClellan Cycle," official publication of the post, tells the story:

"Symbolizing the 100 per cent spirit with which they are fighting this war, over 1000 trainees and cadre of the 21st Bn., 7th Regt., made an outright gift of $650 in War Bonds to the United States government.

"First they individually bought stamps. Converted the stamps into the bonds. Burned the bonds at an impressive ceremony at the amphitheater Monday night while members of the organization watched.

"Maj. J. G. Blackmore, battalion commander, struck the match while Col. Lester L. Lampert, regimental commander, set the bonds ablaze. As the certificates went up in smoke, the government obligations for repayment were also ended.

"Before setting the bonds on fire Colonel Lampert complimented the men for their generous contribution and fine spirit in making the gift. He also paid tribute to their personal contributions as soldiers.

"Three Bonds — $500, $100 and $50 denominations — were purchased from the stamp contributions by the four companies of the battalion. The burning was the highlight of the regimental boxing show.

"The idea originated with trainees in the battalion during the campaign to raise funds to build the Shanghai-La airplane carrier.

"Major Blackmore notified the U. S. Treasury of the serial numbers of the destroyed bonds. Otherwise the bonds would remain an uncleared indebtedness on the books after maturity."

FOUND GUILTY IN POISONING

Waynesburg, Pa., Oct. 7 (AP)—Nancy Jeannette Holt, only woman ever convicted of first-degree murder in Greene county, maintained her perfect calm in her cell at the county jail today while her attorneys worked on arguments for a new trial.

The 29-year-old Oklahoma widow stood erect and unflinching yesterday while the jury of seven men and five women read its verdict in chorus:

"Guilty . . . First degree . . . Life imprisonment."

The verdict which said in effect that poison administered by Mrs. Holt killed her husband, Jesse, 33, "big ink" pipeline tractor operator, last May 27, shattered a tradition that women never are convicted of first-degree murder in Greene county.

Returned For Trial
In the last half century only one other person of either sex was convicted on that charge. He was John Isiminger, who in the early '90s ambushed a huckster, shot him dead, robbed the body, escaped from jail after his conviction, was recaptured in New Orleans and eventually was returned to Waynesburg to be hanged in the Greene county courtyard.

Mrs. Holt has been in jail here since June 18 when she returned voluntarily from Oklahoma where she had gone to bury her husband. She will remain in jail until the court rules on her motion for a new trial. Attorneys were allowed four days to file written briefs.

The trial jury spent four days and a half listening to testimony and returned its verdict exactly six hours after it was given the case.

Man's Body Found Floating In River

Pittsburgh, Oct. 6 (AP)—Police today sought clues to identify a man whose body was found floating in the Allegheny river here and who, coroner's physician J. W. McMeans said, apparently had been murdered.

Dr. McMeans said an autopsy last night revealed the man had died of a cerebral hemorrhage, and that he also had suffered a crushed chest and other injuries. His left eye was blackened and the area around the eye and left temple showed severe abrasions, he said.

Police said the principal clue to his identity was an amputation at the second joint of the little finger of his left hand.

The man was described as about 50 years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 60 pounds, with brown eyes and brown hair.

Congressmen To Study Oil Prices

Washington, Oct. 6 (AP)—An informal meeting of congressmen was called today to consider whether legislation is necessary to increase production of crude oil.

Representative Gavin (R-Pa.), announcing the move, said, "All evidence points to the fact of an actual shortage of crude oil in the not too distant future."

"The Petroleum Coordinator for War (Harold L. Ickes) has repeatedly sounded the alarm and his recommended price increases to stimulate production."

"The Office of Price Administration alone refuses to recognize conditions. The Congress will first demand a solution at the hands of those who have been given temporary authority which Congress was told was necessary to the conduct of the war. If solutions are not reached in that way, the legislative power will be applied."

Court Refuses To Receive River Suit

Pittsburgh, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has refused to take original jurisdiction in a suit by the city of Philadelphia to halt dumping of silt into the Schuylkill river by coal mining companies.

Ruling on the city's efforts to revive an 1896 suit, the high court said the proper tribunal for such a case would be a common pleas court.

"If the suit is brought in Philadelphia county," the opinion added, "the city may also bring in as defendants the individuals engaged in so-called 'bootlegging' coal operations, contributing to the alleged nuisance."

YANKS WIN 4-2 OVER CARDS IN SERIES OPENER

By SID FEDER

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—One up and three to go, the New York Yankees today were just where they were a year ago in their World Series battle with the St. Louis Cardinals, but this time they had Joe Gordon in good working order and that took a lot of the knocks out of the motor.

Victors in yesterday's 4-2 comedy of errors opener that produced some of the weirdest fielding ever seen in any kind of baseball, the American league champions sent Ernie (Tiny) Bonham, their ample right-hander, out in today's second game to follow up Spud Chandler's fancy seven-hitter.

As for the Cards' curver for today, Manager Billy (The Kid) Southworth was psychologizing the boys and refused to choose between rookie left-hander Alpha (Bet) Brazier or fireball right-hander Mort Cooper until early game time at 1:30 p. m., when another tremendous turnout, possibly approaching yesterday's 68,676, was expected. He was doing this, Southworth explained carefully, because he wanted the Yanks "to worry about it a while."

Metheny May Play

Since the Yanks already knocked off the Cards' leading lefty in Max Lanier, they couldn't figure out how Brazier could be any tougher. The only concession they planned to make was that if right-hander Mort Cooper until early game time at 1:30 p. m., when another tremendous turnout, possibly approaching yesterday's 68,676, was expected. He was doing this, Southworth explained carefully, because he wanted the Yanks "to worry about it a while."

The Bombers were especially "unworried" because yesterday Gordon looked like Gordon again, instead of two other guys. The "bum" of last year's set and a so-so performer all this summer, the Flash galloped a 400-foot homer on one of Lanier's 3-1 "cripple" pitches on the offense. The second baseman also equaled one World Series record by making eight assists and came within one of another mark by handling 12 chances. A couple of times, he pulled Chandler out of the fire just when Spud was on the way to a double hot-foot. These came in the seventh when he started a double play to stop one St. Louis rally and again in the eighth, when he worked the cut-off play twice to chill the "whiffles" strongest threat.

Defense Loose

Except for Gordon and Bill Johnson in the Yankee infield and Marty Marion and Whitey Kurowski for the Cards, the defensive play, generally, resembled the annual game at the fat men's picnic.

Walker Cooper and Max Lanier, between them, set up the Yanks' winning rally in the sixth, when with two on, Max turned loose a wild pitch. The ball rolled toward first base and Cooper went looking for it to ward third. One run scored while Cooper rode the merry-go-round and another was set up.

And in the fourth, the Yanks got their first run without a ball being hit out of the infield when Frankie Crosetti was safe on Lanier's bobbie, stole second on Walker Cooper's high throw, went to third on Johnson's scratch single—one of a pair he posted in the game—and pranced home on Charley Keller's double play grounder. Gordon's blow which followed was the most solid of all the eight Yankee hits during the shindig, seven of which Lanier gave up in his seven-inning trick. Max also whiffed seven.

Not to be outdone in the comedy department, the Yanks had some laughs and patter of their own. In the second, after Walker Cooper had scratched a hit to third, Marty Marion sliced a liner over first and into the right field corner. Stainback spent so much time fumbling with it that a number of the folks thought he was carrying on a conversation with the ball. Before he tossed it in, Cooper had scored and Marion was sitting on second.

Etten Blunders

Toppling this for chuckles, however, was the little stunt first sacker Nick Etten, the fugitive from the Phillies, came up with in the fifth. Ray Sanders connected for his first of two hits by barely beating out an infield grounder. Etten, burned up because the Cardinal was called safe, tossed the ball across the infield and it rolled nearly to the Yankee dugout. Sanders lit out for second and made it in a gallop, from where he was brought around by Lanier's looping single to center. All in all, what with a couple of four-motored bombers virtually scraping the stadium roof, it was quite a production.

Seek Third Body On Jersey Beach

Millville, N. J., Oct. 6 (AP)—Coast Guardsmen and State Police who recovered the bodies of two Philadelphia fishermen off Moore's beach on Sunday continued their search for a third member of the party Monday.

The two bodies, identified as those of Samuel Kanes, 50, and Gerald Wasnick, 32, were found within about 90 minutes of each other. Still

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—Walker Cooper likely will be elected to the exclusive schnozzle society (remember Lombardi's swoon at the plate in the '39 World Series?) as a result of losing sight of that wild pitch yesterday, but in our book Nick Etten committed a lot worse error when he protested a close decision by tossing the ball away with a runner on first. . . . All he had to do was to let himself get trapped off the bag in the same inning and Nick would have been back with the Phillies today. . . . Even though the Yanks escaped the consequences, it's a good bet that they'll spend part of the winter looking for another first baseman. . . . As for Cooper's looking the wrong way when the ball disappeared over his shoulder, Manager Billy Southworth has as good an explanation as any: "When they go that high you don't see 'em."

QUOTE, UNQUOTE

Mort Cooper (who'll surely pitch tomorrow if he doesn't get the call today): "My arm never felt better. I don't know where that sore arm stuff got started; I never had a sore arm in my life. I just had a little cold in the shoulder for about three days."

FIRST GAME FOLLIES

Just after Joe Gordon clouted his homer, the rolled-down canvas screen in front of the center field bleachers began to smoulder. . . . looked like a Cardinal fan burning up. . . . And what about that story that the Cards would run the Yanks ragged? . . . Here's how the Yanks got their first run: Crosetti reached first by running over Lanier when the Card pitcher juggled the throw; then he stole second and Walker Cooper threw a mile over the base; Johnson bunted and was safe when Sanders dived for the ball and tried to roll far enough to get Billy because there was no one covering first; then Crosetti scored on a double play. . . . sounds like a typical Card rally. . . . and don't overlook the fact that rookie Bill Johnson was the only Yank to get two hits. . . . or that "Terry Moore" running catch Harry Walker made off Chandler in the seventh.

DOG GONE GOOD CATCHER

Spud Chandler says that if his pitching has improved this season, Bill Dickey deserves the credit. . . . Every time he'd begin to tighten up, Bill would come out and talk something like this: "You're working too fast—and that reminds me of a bird dog I used to have." . . . By the time he'd heard all about the dog, Spud was ready to pitch again.

SERVICE DEPT.

Lieut. (jg) Buddy Hassett drew his first leave since he joined the Navy just in time to see the series and spend some of that $500 out the Yankees voted him. . . . Just before the game he was saying that he ought to play a few innings this year because he didn't get a real workout when he broke his thumb in the first game last fall. . . . When Etten pulled that "skull" Buddy probably was wishing that he really could play—and so was Nick. . . . Pvt. Terry Moore, wearing a string of service ribbons, had to fly five days from his base in the Panama canal zone to get here for the series. He could hardly wait to get into his seat and "see some hitting." . . . How times change: One of the guests in Judge Landis' box was Lieut. Col. Larry MacPhail, who never minced any words when he felt like criticizing the judge.

SUCH IS FAME DEPT.

A couple of hours before yesterday's game a crowd of goggle-eyed fans lined the curb watching the door where the players enter Yankee stadium, just hoping to see somebody important. . . . ten feet away Billy Southworth was talking to a sailor and nobody even noticed him.

Feneubock, Sinkwich Battle For Honors

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP)—A battle for Rookie honors in the National football league this season is in full progress between Chuck Feneubock and Frankie Sinkwich, both of the Detroit Lions.

Flatfoot Frankie, the Georgia Peach, is busy attempting to carry on in the pro circuit where he left off in college—that of becoming the leader in total offense. The all-America grabbed headlines last fall with his record of 2,187 yards gained by passing and running, and now, although used somewhat sparingly in three games, he has rolled up 272 yards for the Lions.

Feneubock, however, is tied with Frankie in rushing, each with 117 yards, but has picked up 166 more by passing for a total offense of 283.

listed as missing is Philip Older, 42. The men disappeared after leaving on a fishing trip in Delaware bay, about 12 miles south of here, last Sunday. Their boat was found early last week.

CANNERS MEET ENOLA ELEVEN AT BIGLERVILLE

Coach Roger Smith's Biglerville high gridders will meet Enola high in a Lower Susquehanna conference game on the Biglerville gridiron Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

For Enola it will be the second game in three days. West York came from behind in the second half to nose out the heavy Enola team 7-6 in a game played Tuesday evening at West York. The defeat gives Enola a record of one victory and one defeat in conference plays.

No change is anticipated in the Cannons' lineup for Thursday evening. The squad is in top-notch condition and Coach Smith will have his full strength available.

Biglerville's probable starting lineup will be as follows:

In its opening game last week Biglerville and Juniata Joint Township high played to a 6-6 deadlock.

STATE BACK AT FULL STRENGTH

State College, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP)—Penn State's battered football squad returned to full strength today with a half-dozen players injured in the North Carolina game reporting for practice for the first time this week.

Coach Bob Higgins indicated scrimmages are out until his Nittany Lions take on Colgate here Saturday in the Penn State homecoming game.

"Our team took a sound physical beating at North Carolina last Saturday," Higgins said, "and our job this week is to restore the squad for the Colgate game. I don't think we'll even consider a scrimmage before the game."

Penn State was beaten 19-0 last week at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, while Army walloped Colgate's Red Raiders, 42-0.

End Coach Earle Edwards of Penn State, who scouted Colgate Saturday, said the Raiders showed power against the West Point team but were outclassed.

"At the peak," he declared, "Penn State and Colgate are of about equal strength. Saturday should find both teams on the rebound from last week's setbacks. It looks like a pretty even game all the way."

Colgate has beaten Penn State four times and lost two of the seven games played. The Nittany Lions won last year by completing a 45-yard pass in the final minutes of the last quarter. The score was 13-10.

Foresees Many Butterless Days

Pittsburgh, Oct. 6 (AP)—Difficulties American housewives now face in purchasing butter may be increased many fold in the near future, and there possibly may be butterless days in all homes, Frank L. Andrews, New York hotel man, believes.

Andrews, speaking before the wartime convention of the American Hotel Association, said last night that creamery shortages, "combined with certain restrictions, soon may cause the departure of butter from the nation's menu for at least one meal each day, and it is possible the shortage may become so acute as to lead to butterless days."

Donald R. Longman, director, services division, Office of Civilian Requirements, told the association, however, his organization would make every effort to provide all branches of civilian life with all necessities.

The association's members, beset with point-rating problems daily, have been eating "pointless" meals most of the time since the convention opened yesterday.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 6 (AP)—John Miller Freeman, 75, noted corporation attorney who helped prepare arguments in the Alaskan boundary dispute with England, died Tuesday at his home.

Associated with D. T. Watson in the firm of Watson and Freeman, he acted as co-counsel in the suit to dissolve the Northern Securities Company around the turn of the century and in a similar suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Born on a farm near Ligonier, Pa., he was graduated from Washington and Jefferson college and then studied law privately under Watson's tutelage. He was admitted to the bar in 1896. He had been president of the D. T. Watson home for crippled children near Leetsdale, Pa., since its organization.

Survivors include the widow, a daughter and a son.

Bombings Being Probed By FBI

Camden, N. J., Oct. 6 (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation took a hand Tuesday in the investigation of two bombings here early on Sunday.

The first blast ripped the doors from H. B. Wilson public school. The second wrecked the entrance to a poolroom in a different section of the city. They occurred about two hours apart.

Detective Benjamin Simon said the FBI is working on the case because the school is headquarters for a draft board.

"We are convinced that the bombings were the work of the same person or persons," he added, "even though there appears to be no connection between the two."

Simon said the bombs were of the home-made variety—sections of heavy pipe filled with black powder.

Eighty-one colleges and universities are aiding the Army in providing limited cost correspondence courses for soldiers.

SYRACUSE GOES WEST IN RACE

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 6 (AP)—The Syracuse Chiefs, hoping Horace Greeley was right, go west today, down a game to the Columbus Red Birds but still strong contenders for the 1943 Little World Series title.

The International leaguers shattered the Birds' long dominance last night when they trounced the American association club, 5-1. Columbus, firing for its third consecutive junior series flag, had won six straight from the Chiefs, four in last year's classic.

A six-hit salvo good for four runs in the first inning kept Manager Jewel Ens' boys in the running for the final card of contests which open at Columbus Thursday night, with the Birds leading two games to one. Lefty Arnold Carter held Columbus to five hits.

Syracuse's Millard (Dixie) Howell, who pitched a five-hitter in the opener only to lose 2-0, is due to tangle again, in the Ohio opener, with Ted Wilks, who straight-jacketed the Chiefs with six blows.

Should there be something to that go-west-and-prosper advice, and the Chiefs win that fourth game, their position would be good for a triumphant finish.

An Evening Thought
You traverse the world in search of happiness, which is within the reach of every man; a contented mind confers it all—Horace.

Just Folks
By Edgar A. Guest
HUSBANDS AND WIVES

Most women are a trusting lot. Though splinters possibly are not. But those who marry, one and all. For promises men make must fall. When man a maiden fair would woo He'll pledge far more than he can do. In gold and lands and silken dress To win from her that one word "Yes!"

Concluding with this line worn thin: "The day, my dear, my ship comes in!"

Go shopping whoso'er you please, Some clerk remarks: "My wife likes these!"

Which means, there is a woman who Is trusting him great deeds to do. And has been lured to be his wife By promises of an ampler life; By vows that winning ball he'll pitch; By pledges some day he'll be rich. For would a maid to wed consent Unless she thought such vows were meant?

Well, there are millions of us males Whose ship from harbor never sails. Or, if it does, sets forth in vain And never gets to port again. But still, in spite of hopes delayed, Of promises by failure frayed, Of all the heartaches and the tears And cares which crowd the flying years, Most men, like me, are blest with wives Who comfort, cheer and grace our lives.

Today's Talk
By George Matthew Adams

BEAUTY IN COMPLETENESS
Every Autumn is a riotous poem! I look forward to this Season as to none other, unless it be the Springtime. But in the Autumn you witness the completeness of all that went on before. The buds and blooming, the storms and draughts, the struggle for expression in flower and leaf, in trunk and branch, each experience contributing to this completeness.

And all through this natural process there has been an ever-changing beauty, a beauty ever struggling for survival, until its last expression shall be represented in ripened fruit, or in matchless color, celebrating the glory that is forever paying homage to the great Creator of all life.

There is a silence, and a peacefulness about the days of Autumn that soothe the soul, and which whisper hope and courage into every appreciative human heart. Almost heard is the breath of the dying leaf, as it leaves its last home of Summer, and gently falls to the waiting earth, there to find its bed for the long sleep of Winter, where it again gives of its substance to the rich earth, that in another Autumn, other leaves may fall.

Beautiful as are many of Winter's days and months, still I always look upon this Season as an Interlude—the beautiful play of the year off stage—and Act I, yet to return with the coming of the Springtime.

Many look upon Autumn as just another change — another Season, but there is a deeper significance to it than this. It is an illustrated expression of what our own lives experience. We are intricately bound into the very loom of Nature. Without her voice, her lessons, and her endless admonitions, we would be poor indeed, both in body and in mind. From no other earthly source do we gain so much spiritual refreshment.

In every falling leaf at Autumn we see a representation in minute bits, of our own abandoned selves — a passing of the years, tasks completed and recorded, and permanent notations made in the book of Memory, whether of leaf or life!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Eventually Into Unity."

Transformed Country Club At Guernsey Now Houses Weaving Factory

Mrs. Osma Gallinger of Guernsey makes it seem simple. Her feet press a treadle at the base of the loom; a heddle rises pulling up part of the warp; she passes the shuttle with the weft from one side to the other, then repeats the process faster than it can be told and a thing of beauty—whether it is a coverlet, a coat, a skirt or rug—is made faster than the eye can follow. The art is called weaving.

It is so simple you forget that the best of American art is combined in the products of the home loom—or that the little factory and school on weaving just being launched at Guernsey by Milo and Osma Gallinger is expected to play an important part in post-war Pennsylvania and America.

The one-time country-club building that was constructed in 1920 by a group of upper-countians at Guernsey has been transformed by Mr. Gallinger into a factory for the production of looms—looms that are to spell a hope for the future of many of America's young men who come back maimed from the war to judge by the orders that have already flooded into the factory. They will prove the salvation of older people in the state, too, and some younger ones in the post-war world, if Roy Helton, of the State Planning board is correct in his estimates.

Commercial Possibilities
Mrs. Gallinger has converted "Loma Vista," the former home of Mr. and Mrs. Benson, now spending the winter in Florida, into a school for weaving and has started her first class there Monday.

All about the place one sees the products of Mrs. Gallinger's busy loom. The bedspreads, table cloths, luncheon sets, Mrs. Gallinger's suit, American flags, draperies, rugs—all are products of the loom—with all the beauty that comes from adaptations of some of the finest examples of American art. That art was produced during the centuries from the founding of America to the present day—for the art of weaving has called forth the best in American women's imagination since the Pilgrim fathers landed on bleak Plymouth rock and the Pilgrim mothers sat down at their spinning wheels and looms to begin making the clothes their men and children needed. They started weaving the heavy comforts and blankets that kept out the winter chill.

Besides the esthetic appeal of weaving, and the commercial possibilities for home workers, the looms have another job to do for the post-war effort.

Mr. Gallinger is at present making a number of looms for use by soldiers, suffering from the shock of war, the loss of hands, or arms, as part of the occupational therapy that will restore them to useful citizenship.

His latest development of the loom, one for bed use, is being seas. W. C. Potter, acting director of the Bureau of Aircraft Production made this announcement upon his return to Washington from an inspection of factories building planes and motors.

"Josie" Doing Her Bit For Victory

If you're not getting enough butter or ice cream these days, you can't say Penstate Veeman Josie isn't doing her part.

A registered Holstein cow owned by the Pennsylvania State college, Josie has produced 22,111 pounds of milk containing more than 763 pounds of butterfat in a 365-day test period.

That boosted ten-year-old Josie's seven-year output to 140,330 pounds of milk containing 4,371 pounds of butterfat.

sought by a number of hospitals. The loom-will be on rollers and will slide over the bed. A foot pedal will be placed so the soldier lying on the bed can operate it. Another feature will be removable pedals which will transfer the loom into a sort of bench with a vise on which may be clamped any handicraft object on which the soldier may wish to work.

Adams county's newest industry thus seems to have a profitable future in store for it.

The Gallingers came from Michigan, although Mrs. Gallinger was born and raised in the Poconos section of Pennsylvania. They returned to Pennsylvania because of the severe winters in Michigan. Besides the craft factory for the production of looms, the couple also teaches basketry and Mrs. Gallinger publishes two magazines sent monthly to subscribers all over the world. She conducts a correspondence school in weaving. Once a year she conducts the National Conference of Handweavers, held this summer at Pittsburgh and which will probably be held here next summer.

RENOVATIONS AT ARENDTSVILLE BANK COMPLETE

Extensive renovations were completed this week at the National bank of Arendtsville.

The improvements were authorized by a board of directors which includes three of the original directors who helped organize the bank 35 years ago, President S. Gilbert Bucher, G. Frank Smith and Robert H. Shull. The other members are W. O. Andrew, W. A. Raffensperger and C. E. Taylor.

The improvements include the removal of the high glass and wood partition in front of the tellers' windows, the placing of new flooring and revamping of the banks' heating plant.

The original counter in the front of the bank has been replaced with a counter 41 inches high surmounted by a 16-inch glass screen with two windows. The counter and the spiked holders for the glass screen have been given a natural walnut finish. A black glass surface has been placed on the counter in front of the screen.

Asphalt tile was placed on the floors of the main bank room, vault and directors' room this week and pipes from the furnace have been placed under the floors.

Cashier Arnold E. Orner, in announcing the improvements, said they were "a direct result of the neighborly interest of the bank in its customers and the people of this section in the bank. The same interest has increased the assets of the bank to over $1,000,000."

Issues New Book On Meat Processing

"The Meat We Eat," a new book, has just been published by P. Thomas Ziegler, professor of animal husbandry at the Pennsylvania State college.

Of interest to farmers, housewives and others, the book describes processes which begin with the slaughter of the animal and end with the meat ready for the roaster.

The book explains the relationship between grades of animals and grades of meat; slaughtering and cutting; processing sausage and lard; curing meats, and tanning hides and skins.

DAIRY AND BEEF CATTLE RAISERS HAVE PROBLEMS

Some of the county's cattle producers and dairy operators are convinced that the dark future threatening them the last several months has not brightened one iota.

A number of dairymen and cattle feeders interviewed during the last week were more than ever convinced that—"if things get worse The Times will be printing an advertisement from me announcing the sale of my stock," as one dairyman put it.

Scarcity of corn was the greatest problem facing the dairymen and a few asserted that if some provision is not made to secure corn in this section they will be unable to keep up their present herds. The costs of milk production may be met by the proposed increase in milk prices, they said, but the increase in income would mean little if corn is not made more readily available.

Costs Have Jumped

The pressure of price ceilings on beef sold to butchers on the one hand and the increased cost of producing cattle on the other is forcing some loss in the sale of cattle, beef feeders assert. Corn costs have increased from 62 to 65 cents a bushel last year to about $1 now; protein feeds have jumped from $45 to $62 a ton, and labor costs have jumped from $65 to about $100 a month, the men say.

If they are to continue in business, the growers say something must be done and quickly by Federal officials. While they are wholeheartedly in support of the war program, they point out, they cannot operate on a too slender margin of profit—or no profit at all.

In March, male and female sandhill cranes congregated in clearings and held nuptial dances.

Drought Cuts County Tomato Crop To 10,000 Tons; Half Of '42 Yield

An estimated 10,000 tons of tomatoes were harvested from the more than 2,000 acres put into commercial production in Adams county this year, a survey of the packing houses of the county revealed today.

The reports from the canners revealed that the crop is about 50 per cent of last year's despite the fact that the northern tier of the county had approximately as good a season as last and possibly was a little better than in former years.

The lower section of the county reported that a smaller acreage had been devoted to the crop this year and that the yield from the acres planted was unusually low. One canner reported that only 600 tons had been grown on 300 acres planted in his area.

While sufficient rain fell in upper regions of the county to produce a good yield despite the smallness of the tomatoes; the southern section found the weather far too dry to get good crops.

Predict Some Shortages

While the upper countians for the most part reported they were able to obtain sufficient help to harvest their tomato crops; the southern section found much difficulty in obtaining the necessary help both in the fields and in the canneries.

Tomato product processors reported a good season but canners of peeled tomatoes reported they were able to put out only half the pack they made last year and one canner said he was attempting to secure machinery to pack juice and similar products next year, abandoning the pack of peeled tomatoes until more labor is available.

Ketchup, tomato juice and pulp will be plentiful this year, the canners reported; but peeled tomatoes will be off the shelves of the stores by Christmas, a processor of the peeled tomatoes declared. The present 18 point price put on No. 2 cans of peeled tomatoes will be increased to 24 by January 1, he said, in an attempt to spread the thin supply.

8-10 Tons Per Acre

The situation on peeled tomatoes in Adams county has been reflected throughout the county, he reported, and as a result only one-half the usual amount of peeled tomatoes were packed.

Two canners in the central section of the county reported that the crops in their area were the equal of last year's or a little better. One canner said the farmers producing tomatoes for his plant obtained from eight to 10 tons an acre while another said his growers in the central part of the county did about that well. In the north central area four to five tons an acre were produced as compared with the two tons an acre report from the southern section.

Estimates on the percentage of the crop ranged from 25 per cent to 100 percent of normal.

"Best Prices Ever"

Prices were the "best ever" with growers receiving $32 a ton for Number One and $20 a ton for Number Two.

Costs of production were up to cut into the farmers' profits from the crop, however. One grower reported to a canner that a few years ago when he paid 25 cents an hour it cost him $9 to pick a load of tomatoes. This year, paying only 15 cents an hour more the cost per load was $29. Inefficient labor was days to secure authorization to handle the apples. "Any person who desires to process restricted apples shall apply for certification as an authorized processor," the order states. In his application he shall specify the location of each of his plants, and the maximum daily capacity of each plant to process each of the products here specified.

Ceillings Threaten

"Processing means the manufacture for commercial purposes any of the following products from restricted apples or fresh-use apples: canned apples, applesauce, apple butter, apple vinegar, apple cider, apple jelly, apple pumace, apple pection, sweet apple juice, concentrated apple juice, frozen apples, frozen applesauce, apple chops, or any or all forms of dried, evaporated, or dehydrated apples," the order explains.

Most canners preferred to wait and see what will occur as a result of the order, but one canner said definitely he does not believe the order would "affect the plans of Adams county growers in the least."

Promulgation of price ceilings in such manner as to force the apples into the processing plants has been threatened by OPA officials according to growers and canners in the county, but The Gettysburg Times could not learn this morning whether any official prices had been placed by the OPA on packed apples.

Growers were talking about an expected ceiling price of $2.18 a bushel on packed apples and there were rumors that a 48-cent addition had been made to that price, but it could not be determined whether any official action had been taken in regards to the packed apples.

Canners' Prices Listed

Canners' prices were also reported under study by the OPA, but, one of the reasons for the great increase in the cost of harvesting the fruit, it was stated.

Some canners reported exceeding long seasons, ranging from two to four weeks longer than usual, while other canners reported that they had only the usual season, from the middle of August to the first week in October. Most of the canneries reported they were closing this week with one of the largest, saying it had completed its pack today. One canner said it planned to continue until about October 15, and that it had begun its work August 3, four weeks longer than the usual period of packing.

One of the largest productions was reported from the York Springs area where a grower is reported to have produced from 16 to 17 tons per acre.

Most of the upper county canners reported increased acreage and processors of ketchup, juice and similar products reported the tomatoes of excellent quality. Packers of peeled tomatoes however, reported that the small size of most of the tomatoes cut into their estimate of the quality of the crop.

like packed apples, nothing officially could be determined.

Prices set by the canners for the most part included:

Tree run from the orchards, U.S. 1's or better 2½-inch up, $3.75 a hundred for class B; U.S. 1's, hundred for class A and $3 a 2½ to 2¾, $2.75 for class A and 2¼ to 2½, $2.75 for class A and $2.25 for class B; No. 2's, 2½-inch up, $1.65 for class A and $1.50 for class B. Ciders were listed at $1 whether tree run or from the culls picked from packing apples.

OPA prices on apples sold by packing houses to processors from the culls apparently continued at No. 1 canner, 2½ up, Class A, $3.10 and Class B, $2.50, on Number 2's, 2½ up, $1.65 for Class A and $1.50 for class B.

No Restrictions on No. 1's

Class A apples for the most part are considered as York Imperial, Stayman Winesap, Golden Delicious and Grimes Golden, with most other apples used by canners considered Class B.

The new regulation from the War Food Administration releases crab and lady apples from all classification and apparently allows the sale of U. S. No. 1's or apples of better grades over 2½ inches free of the restrictions imposed by the order.

Fruit growers who have been selling the better grade apples at stands or packing for later sale apparently can continue to do so.

"Black Market" Looms

The problem of the OPA ceiling to be placed on packed apples continued to lead growers to believe that the black market in apples which has been threatened, since apple prices were first mentioned point out that the freezing order on apples plus too low a scheduled price on packed apples may force them to sell on the black market in order to show a fair profit.

One grower stated that the apparent ceiling price on packed apples is "so far out of proportion to the price given for canning apples that it cannot do anything but cause the grower to use other markets than that governed by the OPA."

"Hope" for Profit

Hearings have been held for the last several weeks by OPA and Department of Agriculture officials on the proposed ceilings, which were scheduled to be announced on Tuesday.

Price ceilings on canned apple products are also scheduled to be released, with canners stating that it has been intimated to them that they will be protected by the new ceiling prices. Nothing official however, could be obtained on the canned product prices.

Canners have been going ahead in the county purchasing apples and producing the various products on the "hope," as one expressed it, "that there may be a profit."

FARMERS URGED TO GATHER CROP OF CLOVER SEED

Adams county farmers who have possible crops of clover and alfalfa seed are urged by County Agent M. T. Hartman to harvest them—if they hope to sow any clover or alfalfa next spring.

Prices of such seed are advancing and what the price or supply will be next spring no one knows, the county agent said today. There was practically no seed left over last spring, and unless an extra large supply of such seed is harvested this fall the shortage will be serious, Hartman warned.

Farmers who can arrange to harvest at least enough for their own needs will be in a fortunate position but those who can thresh some to sell, in addition, will find it profitable. Home-grown seed is well adapted to local conditions and always seems to produce the best stands and the best crops.

The dry weather this summer has favored a good set of seed both in clover and alfalfa and while in some fields the growth is so short it would not make a worth-while hay crop or be much good as pasture, it will provide lots of seed, it was stated.

The job of harvesting the seed is not too difficult with the use of a custom combine, it was asserted. If the combine is carefully adjusted and operated a very satisfactory job can be done. The most common mistake is to drive too fast and run much of the seed over the tail of the machine. Often the job will be done by the custom operator for one half of the seed so that the farmer has no outlay of labor or cash. Combines and high seed prices make it profitable to harvest crops that formerly would not have paid for the trouble.

Many combine operators harvest clover and alfalfa seed until severe winter weather, it was stated, although there is loss from shattering.

Hay Valuable Too

Alfalfa will produce several bushels of seed per acre. Rather thin stands of hardy alfalfa, such as Grim or Canadian are most likely to set well. Both honey and bumble bees are important in pollinating red clover and alfalfa, however, and if for any reason they did not work on a field there will be little or no seed.

A number of farmers in this area have already harvested profitable crops of Ladino clover seed. With the seed supply very short and worth over a dollar a pound, high yields are not essential to make harvest profitable. The usual method is to make hay of the Ladino and to thresh it in the barn so that the hay, which is excellent feed, can also be saved and fed. Some times it pays to run the Ladino clover through the threshing machine a second time.

Big Demand For Apiary Products

Adams county's beekeepers are wondering how they can place their bees on a longer work week.

The products of the bees' busy endeavors was never more in demand than at the present time, the keepers said. One beekeeper reported one industrial plant offered him a premium price for his entire honey output to be used in place of sugar.

In an attempt to make the supply stretch to all the old customers and still have some for the new clients the beekeepers have decided on their own brands of rationing.

The sad thing, one said, was that bees do not take kindly to "pep" talks and can produce only so much, no matter what the demand may be.

Farm Calendar

Sowing Grain in Dust: The dry weather has hampered germination of winter grain sown this fall. Without rain in time much of the grain will not come up soon enough to make sufficient growth for safe winter survival, extension agronomists of the Pennsylvania State College fear. Rye is probably the only grain safe for late sowing.

Produce Clean Eggs: It is easier to produce clean eggs than to clean dirty ones. Poultry specialists of the Pennsylvania State College suggest clean 2-inch lighting boards in front of nests and feeders, screened droppings boards, elimination of wet areas around drinking fountains, and shavings for nesting material.

Obtain Good Seed: Because of widespread presence of ring-rot in many potato crops in Pennsylvania, growers are urged by plant pathologists of the Pennsylvania State college to sell their crops, disinfect the premises, and obtain certified seed or seed produced from certified stock this year to use in the 1944 planting.

Select Trees to Cut: Before the leaves fall, woodland owners in a few hours can mark the weak, sickly, and dead trees which should be cut during the winter. Extension foresters of the Pennsylvania State college suggest "blazing" the trees all on one side.

Mr. Hartman said. A combine can be used in this case as a stationary thrasher and the job done at any convenient time. A dump rake may gather this short material better and with less loss of heads than a side delivery rake, it was said.

RIISING GRAIN PRICES AID TO STATE FARMERS

Harrisburg, Oct. 6 (AP)—Advancing grain prices between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15 helped boost the index of prices paid Pennsylvania farmers for all products from 204 to 207 points, the Department of Agriculture reported today.

The Department's federal-state crop reporting service said prices of all grains except buckwheat rose three to nine cents a bushel.

"Also aiding the index advance was the continuing trend in the increased consumption of fluid milk, accompanied by reduced production," the service asserted in a statement which pointed out that milk is being used in higher priced consumer channels that formerly was diverted to manufacturing processes.

Hog Prices Up

The index of prices is based on the figure 100, assigned to average prices paid farmers during the period between 1909 and 1914.

"Wheat advanced nine cents per bushel to $1.54 in the August-September period," said the service. "Other advances include corn, three cents to $1.22 a bushel; oats, five cents to 82 cents a bushel; barley, five cents to $1.11 a bushel and rye, five cents to $1.09 a bushel. Buckwheat declined 11 cents to $1.08 a bushel."

The service reported hogs were the only meat animals bringing farmers more money, with a recorded advance of 30 cents to $14.50 per hundred pounds.

"Poor Man's Orange" Has Higher Vitamin "A" and "C" Content

Adams county tomatoes, always noted for their vitamin content, are doubly laden with life protecting vitamins this year.

The hot sun and dry weather produced a tomato in Adams county this year that has a higher vitamin A and C content than for many previous years, Willis Beldier, chemist for the C. H. Musselman company, discovered this summer while working with the fruit. To confirm his testimony, experts from the Food-Drug Administration came to Biglerville to test the tomatoes—they found the same results.

The "poor man's orange," as the tomato has been called, is proving its name particularly well this year. Tomatoes are second only to citrus fruits in vitamin C content.

HORSE SUPPLY IS DWINDLING

Harrisburg, Oct. 6 (AP)—You can lead a horse to an auction block in Pennsylvania and find plenty of buyers in these days of non-rationed oats and pasture.

The "David Harums" have come out of retirement and are doing an increasing business at 25 state-regulated auction markets where the Army mingles with townfolk and farmers to compete for a dwindling supply of once-scorched nags.

In fact, says Miles Horst, Secretary of Agriculture, heavy buying by the Army and increasing popularity of riding and driving horses in urban areas have cut the farm supply of the animals from 270,000 in January of 1940 to 239,000 this year.

"It appears that too many farm horses that normally would be bought by farmers are going to town," Horst explained. "Horse sales are reported to be larger and more frequent this year than in recent times."

So far old Dobbin has not created a traffic problem on rural roads, Col. C. M. Wilhelm, State Police commissioner reported, but added:

"Police in city areas are having some trouble with more horses on streets."

The United Service Organizations has a volunteer staff of about 600,000 workers throughout the United States.

ADMINISTRATION TAX PLAN HAS BEEN SCRAPPED

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY
Washington, Oct. 6 (AP) — The Administration's $10,500,000,000 tax program was as good as scrapped Tuesday and the House Ways and Means committee began drafting a revenue measure of its own which may yield only half as much.

The Administration plan was torpedoed shortly after it was launched when Rep. Doughton (D-N. C.), leading Congressional tax authority, termed it "ambitious" and in some respects "indefensible."

Equally chilly was the reception on the Republican side of the committee. Rep. Carlson (R-Kas.) said "I don't think we can add this burden now on the middle class group. We had better start looking for economies. We won't be able to raise more than $4,000,000,000 in additional taxes."

Inflation Guard

As Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson prepared to go before the committee in an effort to salvage as much as possible of the Administration program, new talk was heard of a drive to enact a Federal Sales tax.

One of Vinson's chief arguments is expected to be that higher taxes are needed to stave off an inflation threat.

Presented by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Randolph Paul, Treasury general counsel, the Administration program proposed an increase of about 40 per cent in the amount of Federal revenue to be taken from personal incomes, with surtax rates to be more than doubled for individuals with taxable income between $1,000 and $6,000.

Would Lower Exemptions

It asked for steep increases in levies on corporation and on such articles as liquor and tobacco products. It would place new taxes on soft drinks and chewing gum.

Morgenthau suggested that the withholding levy on the taxable portions of wages and salaries, now 20 per cent, be put on a graduated basis and that it cover gross earnings of all wage and salary income groups, instead of just the first bracket income level as at present.

Under the Administration plan, personal exemptions for married couples would be reduced from $1,200 to $1,100; dependents from $350 to $300, while the single person's exemption would remain at $500. The Victory tax and the earned income credit would be repealed, the former being integrated in the increased surtax rates.

Congressman To Protect Consumer

Washington, Oct. 6 (AP) — The start of a campaign for the "use of subsidies to protect the consumer and the use of incentive payments to increase production of food" was announced Monday by Rep. Scanlon (D-Pa.), chairman of a group in Congress who have formed a "committee for the protection of the consumer."

In a prepared statement, the Pittsburgh congressman said, "the current request for $500,000,000 for the Commodity Credit corporation must be speedily granted, with none of the strings that certain forces in Congress tried to attach last July in order to forbid the use of subsidies to roll back living costs or even hold the line."

Scanlon said the committee supports "the current subsidy and feed allocation plan being used to keep the cost of milk to the consumer up."

Status Changed Of Per Diem Workers

Harrisburg, Oct. 6 (AP) — All regularly employed per diem (paid by the day) workers at the state capital are getting shifted to the permanent commonwealth payroll under orders of Governor Martin.

"The governor called in cabinet members and told them to transfer per diem workers in their departments who have been employed year in and year out to the semi-monthly payroll," a high administration source declared Tuesday.

The move is designed to give per diem workers sick leaves and allow them to contribute to the retirement fund. Workers paid on a day-to-day basis now lack these privileges.

The official said the number affected could not be determined now but added that per diem workers in the field, or those hired for seasonal increases in work, are not included.

Ellwood City Has Tripled Bond Goal

Ellwood City, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP) — Other communities, or counties, can boast of surpassing their quotas in the Third War Loan drive which closed last Saturday, but Ellwood City's 12,000 residents believe they have a mark for all of them to shoot at.

Campaign Manager R. Charles Stiesel said last night final tabulations revealed the city had nearly tripled its quota of $980,000, purchasing a total of $2,731,040.75 worth of bonds.

Charges Fly In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Oct. 6 (AP) — Philadelphia, traditional hotbed of politics, ran an election eve temperature today, although the voters won't go to the polls for nearly a month.

National and international issues were injected into the blazing mayoralty campaign as it became apparent that both the Republican and Democratic high commands considered the contest of more than local significance.

Harrison E. Spangler, National Republican chairman, appeared on the scene yesterday to lend his support to Acting Mayor Bernard Samuel's candidacy, while in Washington President Roosevelt said he could not give political comment but he was glad to hear that William C. Bullitt, the Democratic candidate, was running for mayor.

Spangler made two addresses yesterday. In the first, before a gathering of committeemen, he said, "When I heard the opposition was importing a non-resident of Philadelphia to run for mayor, I thought I had as much business here as he had, so here I am."

Later, speaking before a ward banquet, he said, "the palace guard of the White House is seeking to New Dealize Philadelphia by sending one of the Federal yes-men into the city to seek the office of mayor."

Make Arrest In 5-Year-Old Murder

Pittsburgh, Oct. 6 (AP) — A five-year old murder case which Mrs. Mildred Patkus, a pretty 28-year-old blonde, was slashed and stabbed 50 times, was reopened on Sunday with an announcement by police that they had taken a "hawk-nosed" suspect into custody.

Mrs. Patkus's partially nude body was found in a northside "lovers' lane" in 1938, in what the Pittsburgh police department described as one of the most atrocious crimes in its history.

Mrs. Patkus was last seen, police said, leaving a tavern with a "hawk-nosed" man and Detective Inspector Walter C. Monaghan identified the suspect as that man.

Americans buy War Bonds, share cars with neighbors, carry packages from the stores, resist the black market, work in war plants. It's a part of the war on the Home Front. And it's the job of newspapers to convey to people the big job that is to be done.

The successful War Bond drives, the scrap salvaging campaigns, the collection of fats... case histories of these tell the part the newspaper has played in keeping the public informed.

Newspapers are doing a BIG war job! Look through the pages any day and read messages to the public on buying War Bonds, conserving, salvaging, exerting every effort to winning the war.

Convention Here

Plans for the annual convention which will be held in Gettysburg Thursday and Friday, November 4 and 5, were discussed and Mrs. A. Harrison Barr and Mrs. C. H. Heldt were chosen to represent the local group as delegates. It was announced that both the luncheon and banquet at that time will be served by the women of St. James Lutheran church at the church.

The following dates were announced for the remaining four meetings of the League this year: December 7, February 8, March 14 and May 9. Four money-making projects were adopted.

The first will be a rummage sale Friday and Saturday of this week with Mrs. C. Richard Wolff and a committee in charge. The second project will be a continuation of the Golden Books, the third a "Street Fair" which will be held in connection with the December meeting with Mrs. Raymond F. Sheely in charge of arrangements and the final project the presentation of a play next spring.

national fields—new developments and new trends which, while not accurately predictable, can by study and research be reasonably well forecast.

3. Travel, manufacturing, agriculture and education are our assets and our four principal sources of income, hence, our overall objective is to prepare to meet the new trends and developments and the keener competition we must expect, and provide the jobs that are needed by those returning permanent jobs with future possibilities.

Whatever the community's post-war problems are, it is clear they must be solved by the community, and the only way this can be done is through exercise of local enterprise and initiative.

Failure in this, Mr. Cummings said, leaves as the only alternative . . . Federal control of an unemployment problem.

The alternative, he made plainly obvious, is only a stop-gap at best and would not even deal with the competitive factors.

Post-war planning has come to be a much discussed term. No one knows exactly what to plan for or exactly when a plan must be available for instant operation.

Everyone should know, however, that if the post-war future is not to go by default and if the ruin that invariably follows wild over-expansion and error, both of omission and commission, is to be avoided, community appraisal of the most realistic nature must be undertaken to form the basis of whatever plans are best adaptable to the conditions that exist.

Gettysburg's four assets, its four principal sources of income, are fields of great promise.

The process of appraising them and of making a study of our resources, human and physical, should begin now.

Few tasks can be more difficult than that of the Post-War Planning Committee . . . but none can be more fascinating, nor productive of as much permanent good.

Certainly, we have among our human resources men and women thoroughly representative of all the community's and the county's activities and interests, with the necessary vision and soundness of judgment to determine the directions in which our future course must be charted.

Surely, there is among our human resources the individual to direct this work.

Let's start now, at once. Let's be impartial, thorough and painstaking in our effort to create an objective and be prepared to achieve that goal at the earliest possible moment.

We invite constructive criticism and suggestions.

In the Wake of MURDER

By ADELINE McELFRESH

Chapter 18

Breakfast at seven was as much a part of Lucinda Eddy's life as the nine o'clock meal was in the lives of the Black family. Jane, who felt as though she had been awake for hours, joined her in the cozy kitchen.

"Nice," she murmured, surveying the bacon and eggs on her plate. "Lucinda, I feel like purring. Things look so much brighter this morning."

Miss Eddy smiled. She did not believe her young guest, for there were darkish circles under Jane's eyes. Not much sleep, those circles shouted.

"I'm glad, dear," she said. "Coming down to the office today?"

The dimple faded from Jane's left cheek. Her eyes dropped to the bacon and eggs.

"No, Lucinda. Not today, I think."

Lucinda sipped her coffee, purposely prolonging the pleasure of drinking it. She wondered what had happened between Jane and Brad. Something had, she was sure. Jane had deftly switched the conversation to other channels every time she mentioned his name.

After Lucinda had gone to the Chronicle office, Jane went upstairs. She made up her bed and tidied the room, but that took such a short time that the morning stretched ahead like a great void that must be filled.

Somehow, the hours passed. Jane had called her aunt and asked that Uncle Ed bring her some clothes so she could visit a few days with Lucinda. Aunt Ella had agreed, rather reluctantly, but Jane put that reluctance down to fears for her safety. Poor dear, I should have gone home, she scolded herself.

No, not home. Home was the apartment. The Black country house was not home, although it had been a haven at many times and Jane had had good fun there.

She stooped to pat Melinda as the cat rubbed against her ankles. "Nice Melie," she said. "Want some milk?"

Feeding Melinda took more minutes until, at long last, it was noon. After a sandwich and a glass of milk, Jane found herself with the afternoon before her.

She turned on the radio but a Christmas carol jingled its cheerful melody through the room and she shut it off. She was not in the mood for Christmas carols.

Drowsiness clouded her thoughts and the next thing Jane knew Lucinda was shaking her.

"Wake up, child. You won't sleep any tonight," Miss Eddy was smiling. "You must have had quite a nap."

Jane laughed self-consciously. "I did," she admitted. "Since right after noon."

"And it's almost seven now. Come on, we'll have supper."

They were eating when Lucinda, watching Jane carefully, said: "We almost had a guest this evening."

Jane asked "who?" but she knew. Lucinda laughed. "He promised to bring his ration book if I'd invite him." She paused, hoping

Jane would say something, then: "What's happened, Jane?"

"Nothing. I'd rather not talk about Brad, if you don't mind."

"Of course, dear," Lucinda poured herself another glass of milk.

They cleared away the dishes together and Jane went upstairs to change into a navy blue jersey frock her aunt had so thoughtfully packed into the suitcase Uncle Ed had taken to the office for Lucinda to bring home. Lucinda came in before she had finished dressing.

"Jane, would you run to the drug store for me? I'm getting one of my headaches and I don't have an aspirin in the house."

"Of course. I'll be back in a jiffy."

Jane finished dressing and went downstairs. Lucinda did look tired, she decided. Poor dear, she should slow down. She wasn't young any more and her job was a difficult one.

But Jane, had she seen Lucinda when the door closed, would have decided the tiredness was an act. Lucinda looked after her and smiled knowingly.

There was no drug store nearer than Sixth and Madison. Jane turned her collar up against the biting wind and started the five-block hike. It was a good wind, she decided, feeling the mental cobwebs beginning to take flight.

Stars were twinkling at her, their brightness vying with the artificial light of the street-lamps and the Neon signs. "Upstairs it's beautiful, Jane," Joe Masters had written in that last letter from Java. "The stars are like big candles, just out of reach, lighting your way home. There's nothing like it when your plane is purring like a kitten on an Indiana farm, and you're thinking of home."

Jane smiled. Funny how those words were engraved on her heart. She could repeat every line of that last letter. "An Indiana farm," he had said. Jane remembered the times they had talked of going back to that farm, where Joe would settle down for a year to write the book he'd been dreaming of.

A far cry from tonight. Jane bit back the sob that struggled in her throat.

The drug store was crowded. High school boys and girls were dancing on the tiny dance floor that was sandwiched between the tables. Jane pushed her way over to the drug counter and gave her order. The record ended and somebody slipped another nickel in the juke box. Jane paid the clerk, dropped the box of aspirin in her purse, and fled.

Brad was weighing himself on the penny scales on the sidewalk. Jane drew back momentarily, then went on.

"Hi, Janey," he greeted, turning as though he knew she was standing in the door. "My car." He gestured toward a coupe at the curb.

Jane got in without a word. She didn't want to make a scene.

Neither of them talked much. Finally, after the car had crossed the river almost 10 miles from Centralia, Jane said:

"Don't you think you'd better explain, Brad?"

"Why I brought you out here, you Keith, Bigham & Markley, Attorneys."

CONGRESS TO ACT ON DRAFT

Washington, Oct. 6 (AP) — The Senate shifted from the debate to the action stage on the father draft issue Tuesday with leaders counting on deciding this question once and for all this week.

Administration chieftains decided to call up in succession several substitutes for the Wheeler bill which would have postponed until January 1 drafting of pre-war fathers.

It was not made clear that a straight-out vote on the Wheeler measure itself ever may be taken though the outspoken Montana Democrat who sponsored it may find a way to bring that about, parliamentarily. Passage of a substitute technically would constitute a defeat of the original bill by simply rewriting it in entirety.

Majority leader Barkley (Ky) decided to call up first an administration-supported revision of a proposal by Senator Bailey (D-NC) designed to steer able-bodied government workers into the armed forces.

Offered as a substitute for the mean?" he asked, and she nodded. "Are you afraid, Jane?"

"No," she said. "Brad laughed. 'That should be a point in my favor,' he remarked. 'You're going to listen to me now, Jane. You have to. It's 10 miles back to town.'"

"Yes," Jane agreed. "Out here you can make me listen, can't you?"

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—Latest compilation of frequency modulation stations shows an even 50 operating in various parts of the country under three classifications. The figures are supplied by FM broadcasters, Inc.
Of the 50, four are educational, six are experimental and 40 are commercial. The largest number are located in the northeast section, including New England, which has 29. The midwest is next with 16, while the south has three and the Pacific two.
Delayed return to this country from European war areas, where she has been entertaining service men, has caused the postponement for one week of the new Monday-through-Friday series on MBS by Gracie Fields, British comedienne. The original starting date was next Monday night. Her show last year was on the Blu.
